CANADA HUMAN RIGHTS MUSEUM DEBUTS IN MANITOBA

Join in a full weekend of free events and performances to celebrate the opening of the Canadian Museum for Human Rights, the first museum in the world dedicated solely to the evolution, celebration, and future of human rights (Sept. 20-21). The two-day, family-friendly festival in Winnipeg, Manitoba, dubbed RightsFest, features the open-air Canadian Concert for Human Rights. Performers include Canadian folk legend Bruce Cockburn, Vancouver-based hip-hop artist Shad, East Coast fiddler Ashley MacIsaac, and singer-songwriter, educator, artist, and social activist Buffy Sainte-Marie. Free guided tours through select museum galleries will be offered morning until late afternoon both days. Regular paid admissions begin Sept. 27. Adults $15, ages 7-17 $8. 877-877-6037, www.humanrights.ca/

LUXURY ON SALE IN HISTORIC QUITO

Travelers to Quito can sleep in style while saving 25 percent off room rates at the boutique hotel Casa Gangotena. (Available in September and Dec. 1-15). Situated in Quito's historic heart, at the corner of Plaza San Francisco, accommodations are steps away from the gilt Jesuit church of La Compañía de Jesús, the Museum of the City, the Plaza Santo Domingo, the Presidential Palace, and the bustle of Quito's Old Town. Once a historic mansion, the hotel has restored many Art Nouveau and Art Deco elements from the mid-1920s, including original painted tin ceilings, wood paneling, and painted murals and friezes. Public spaces include a glassed-in patio, garden, library, panoramic terrace, and a restaurant serving innovative Ecuadorian cuisine. Included in room price is daily afternoon tea served with scones, mini-sandwiches, empanadas, and house-made pastries. Before-discount rates from $395. 011-593-2-400-8000, www.casagangotena.com/en/
