A fount of family gossip, he can also be warmhearted. “We, mom, and I convinced them that Dad should have died, said sea living more than 150 years of history. The mansion’s roof was blown off in a tornado and the property passed out of family hands in the 1940s. The future looked grim until 1989 when Prince Huber- tus Pugger of Bavaria bought the property and set about bringing it back to life. By 1999 he had created a resort of cottages clustered in an English-style village. Thirty-six cottages range from one to seven bedrooms. Many feature wood-burning fireplaces and front porches with rocking chairs. This year, a 55-room inn opened to offer even more lodging options. During the day, I like to have the run of a private suite. I followed one of the hiking trails to the family cemetery where Godfrey Barnsley is buried and visited the gardens and house in the barnyard. Patti invited me back for a horseback riding while I stopped to play my hand at the sporting clays course.
